Roberts Gets Nod For Court

Conservative federal judge tapped to replace O'Connor

WASHINGTON | President Bush chose federal appeals court judge John G. Roberts Jr. on Tuesday as his first nominee for the Supreme Court, selecting a rock-solid conservative who has won broad support from both parties but still faces what could be a contentious battle over the direction of the nation's highest court.

Bush announced his choice with a flourish in a nationally broadcast speech to the nation. His selection of Roberts was somewhat of a surprise since there had been some expectations that he would replace retiring Justice Sandra Day O'Connor with a woman or minority.

Roberts

Advocacy groups on the right say that Roberts, a 50-year-old native of Buffalo, N.Y., who attended Harvard Law School, is a bright judge with strong conservative credentials he burnished in the administrations of former Presidents Bush and Reagan.

Liberal groups, however, say Roberts has taken positions in cases involving free speech and religious liberty that endanger those rights. Abortion rights groups allege that Roberts is hostile to women's reproductive freedom and cite a brief he co-wrote in 1990 that suggested the Supreme Court overturn Roe v. Wade, the landmark 1973 high court decision that legalized abortion. DEB RIECHMANN (AP)

IDENTITY | I'm a Changed Man, Your Honor Charges have been dropped against an alleged thief in Dragor, Bulgaria, after the defendant had a sex-change operation, United Press International reported Tuesday. A quirk in Bulgarian law states those who undergo sex changes are legally different people afterward. As such, Sretko Ickov — now a woman known as Albena Mihajlova — was technically not the person charged with the crime. (EXPRESS) EyeOpeners | Page 2

THE LAW

Hey, I'm Just Doing What I'm Told

A 15-year-old in Alnwick, England, was given an Anti-Social Behavioral Order that required him to be drunk, the Daily Record reported. The mistaken order, issued in February, meant that the teenager was breaking the law if he did not have alcohol on him or use threatening behavior that was likely to cause harassment, alarm or distress to the public. The problem was a simple "without" in the wording when "with" was meant. The typo was discovered when the teen ended up back in court for allegedly breaking the order's conditions — at least, what the conditions were supposed to be. (EXPRESS)

SNITCHES

Parrot Sings Like a Canary

Two robbers in El Salvador will spend five years in prison, thanks to a stolen parrot. The pair broke into a woman's home, taking cash, a cell phone and a parrot, "Paquita," local media reported Tuesday. They got away, but were stopped at a police checkpoint; the parrot squawked "I've been robbed!" — which is what its owner had yelled as the robbers left — at the officers, prompting them to search the car and arrest the men. (EXPRESS)

THE FUTURE

Exercise Machines

KIMIMASA MAYAMA/REUTERS

Your grandparents no longer have an excuse to not help out when an extra hand is needed with some gruntwork. The robot suit "Hybrid Assistive Limb," or HAL 5 — for some reason, we don't feel "HAL" is ever a good choice of robotical acronym — gives an average person twice their usual strength, but is meant, for now, as a way to assist the elderly. SESAME STREET

'E' is for 'Eye-Sore'

A Big Bird sculpture on a duplex chimney in Greendale, Wis., has ruffled a few feathers. "It's obnoxious. It's unsightly. ... I feel like I'm living in a theme park," neighbor Cynthia Leedale said. But Al Emmons, who built the sculpture last fall, calls it art that helps cover pipes, and says his freedom of expression is at stake. On Tuesday, town officials heard from neighbors who petitioned to have the sculpture removed. "One man's bluebird of happiness is another man's 'Nightmare on Elm Street,'" commission chairman Scott Leonard said. (AP)

Senate Preps for Hearings

Bush's Supreme Court nominee is likely to testify in late summer

WASHINGTON | Within minutes of the announcement that President Bush had selected a Supreme Court nominee, the Republican-controlled Senate began preparing for a late summer confirmation struggle.

Confirmation hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee are expected to begin in late August or early September, Republicans said, with an eye toward getting Bush's nominee confirmed before the Supreme Court opens its fall term Oct. 3.

"It's important that we have a nominee confirmed by then," said Sen. Norm Coleman, R-Minn. "We'll have time to do that."

Judiciary Committee Chairman Arlen Specter, R-Pa., met with the White House officials Monday. In preparation for the hearings, the committee will conduct its own vetting of the nominee while lawmakers are on a monthlong August recess.

Committee aides have said they need three to six weeks to prepare for the confirmation hearings, depending on how much of a paper trail the nominee has. That means the first hearing would be in late

Coleman

August at the earliest and possibly not until after Labor Day.

Whatever the committee's recommendation, the full Senate traditionally gives the nomination a vote.

However, a controversial nominee could force a showdown over the use of a filibuster to block a confirmation vote. A nomination needs only a majority — 51 votes if all 100 senators vote — but breaking a filibuster requires 60 votes. JESSE J. HOLLAND (AP)

THE SUPREME COURT: BY THE NUMBERS

As President Bush announces the first nominee to the U.S. Supreme Court in 11 years, a look at some of the high court's other numerical distinctions:

- 145: The total number of Supreme Court nominees, before Tuesday.
- 39: The age at which Joseph Story joined the high court in 1811. He remains the youngest justice to have served on the Supreme Court.
- 1823: The year Justice Brockholst Livingston died, marking the end of a nine-justice slate that had been in place for more than 11 years. The current court is the longest-serving lineup since then.

- 90: The age of Oliver Wendell Holmes, the oldest serving Supreme Court justice, when he retired in 1932.

- 36: The number of years William O. Douglas, the longest-serving Supreme Court justice, spent on the bench. He served from 1939 to 1975.

Court Hears 'Enemy Combatant' Appeal

RICHMOND, VA. | A lawyer for Jose Padilla, an American accused of plotting to detonate a radioactive "dirty bomb," went before a federal appeals court Tuesday and demanded the U.S. government either charge his client with a crime or set him free.

But a Bush administration lawyer told the court that the president must have authority to indefinitely detain suspected terrorists who come to the U.S. intent on killing civilians.

Padilla, a former Chicago gang member and Muslim convert suspected of being an al Qaeda operative, was seized in 2002 after flying from Pakistan to Chicago on what authorities said was a scouting mission for a plot to set off a bomb laced with radioactive material. Padilla also is suspected of planning to blow up apartment buildings in several cities by filling them with natural gas.

President Bush declared Padilla an "enemy combatant," a designation that allows the military to hold someone without charges. Padilla is in the Navy brig in Charleston, S.C. (AP)

Group Adds Bases To Closings List

Commission's changes include installations in Va., the District

WASHINGTON | The base-closing commission voted Tuesday to add a handful of military facilities in eight states and the nation's capital to the hundreds that Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld wants to close or shrink.

The Navy Broadway Complex in San Diego and the Naval Air Station in Brunswick, Maine, now are on the list of installations to be closed. Under the commission's actions, the Naval Master Jet Base at the Naval Air Station Oceana in Virginia and Pope Air Force Base in North Carolina could see even more force reductions than the Pentagon proposed or could be shut down.

Even small facilities were not immune. With an eye on possibly merging administrative, education and medical services, the commission voted to include several small installations in Colorado, Ohio, Indiana, California, Virginia and Washington, D.C., for consideration.

Principi

"This commission knows what it is talking about and is not a rubber stamp," commission Chairman Anthony Principi said after the vote, reacting to congressional fears the group would simply sign off on Rumsfeld's list.

By adding bases to the list, the commission gave itself more flexibility to change what the Pentagon proposed as it considers reworking the domestic base network to better suit today's defense needs. (AP)

Hamster With Virus Traced to Distribution Hub

TOLEDO, OHIO | A pet hamster blamed for spreading a virus that killed three transplant patients in April has been traced to an Ohio distribution center that supplies hamsters to pet stores throughout the East Coast, officials said Tuesday.

Investigators quarantined the center Monday and plan to test the animals for the virus in an effort to trace its origin. "We don't know whether the disease is there or not," said LeeAnne Mizer, a spokeswoman for the Ohio Department of Agriculture.

The hamster had lymphocytic choriomeningitis, or LCMV, a virus that usually causes little or no illness in healthy people but can be deadly for those with weak immune systems. (AP)

Insurgents assassinate officials involved with new Iraqi constitution

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Gunmen assassinated two Sunni Arabs involved in the drafting of Iraq's constitution Tuesday, another blow to U.S. and Iraqi efforts to draw members of the disaffected community away from the insurgency and into the political process.

Mijbil Issa, a committee member, Dhamin Hussein al-Obeidi, an adviser to the group, and their bodyguard died in a hail of gunfire from two vehicles as they left a restaurant in Baghdad's Karradah district, police said.

Issa, a prominent lawyer, was among 15 Sunni Arabs appointed last month to the 55-member constitutional committee — made up mostly of Shiites and Kurds — to

Emily Set to Lash Mexico Coast Anew

LA PESCA, MEXICO | Hurricane Emily gathered strength and began lashing Mexico's coastline with wind and rain Tuesday, forcing thousands in northeastern Mexico and southern Texas to seek higher ground.

The hurricane's eye was likely to come ashore early Wednesday near this small fishing village popular with Mexican and U.S. tourists.

Residents rushed to nail plywood boards over windows and doors, while Mexican army trucks roamed the streets collecting evacuees laden with suitcases.

The town was among at least 20 low-lying, seaside Mexican communities being emptied of residents before the storm, which was expected to hit a sparsely populated stretch of coastline just south of the Texas border.

Emily hit the Yucatan Peninsula on Monday as a fierce Category 4 storm. Hundreds of local residents were left homeless, but no deaths or major injuries were reported.

The storm weakened during the rampage but once back out to sea it strengthened to a Category 2 hurricane, packing sustained winds of 100 mph Tuesday afternoon. (AP)

Kenyan Police Try To Deter Protest

NAIROBI, KENYA | Police used tear gas and water cannons and sealed off roads leading to the National Assembly to try to deter demonstrators opposing constitutional amendments that retain the wide-ranging powers of Kenya's president.

The demonstrators, taking part in the first of three days of planned protests, oppose plans spearheaded by allies of President Mwai Kibaki to change the draft constitution in an effort to retain his powers and weaken those of a proposed prime minister. (AP)

Pakistan Detains 7 in London Probe

Men suspected of ties to bombings; Egypt denies chemist's link

LAHORE, PAKISTAN | Pakistan police said Tuesday they were holding seven Islamic militants with possible links to the London suicide bombers, as the investigation focused on the city of Lahore. In a nationwide sweep, authorities also detained another 82 people suspected of ties to militants.

Security officials believe one of the London bombers — Shahzad Tanweer, 22 — spent a few days at a religious school in Lahore, an eastern city where many militant groups have clandestine operations.

Police officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the seven detained men were from two outlawed militant groups, Lashkar-e-Jhangvi and Jaish-e-Mohammed. Both are linked to al Qaeda.

Another focus of the London probe has been Magdy el-Nashar, an Egyptian chemist who obtained a doctorate from Leeds University this year.

Authorities in Cairo detained el-Nashar last week at the request of the British government.

Egyptian government spokesman Magdy Rady said Tuesday an Interior Ministry report "made clear that there is no link between Egyptian chemist Magdy el-Nashar with al Qaeda or the bombings."

Scotland Yard declined to comment. (AP)

Explosion Kills 14 in Chechnya

Separatist insurgents lure security forces to site of bomb attack

ROSTOV-ON-DON, RUSSIA | Insurgents set off a bomb Tuesday near a police minibus in breakaway Chechnya after luring the security forces into a trap, killing 14 people, including two children, and wounding more than 20 others, regional officials said.

The attackers set the trap by firing at a corpse left in a stolen police jeep to make the Interior Ministry troops believe a gun attack was taking place and get them to go to the scene, said the head of the Chechen Security Council, Rudnik Dudayev.

Chechnya's Moscow-backed President Alu Alkhanov said 14 people had died and more than 20 others were wounded in the attack in the village of Znamenskoye, the Interfax news agency reported.

The attack occurred in an area of Chechnya under firm Russian control, again showing Moscow's inability to end the decade-long separatist insurgency. SERGEI VENYAVSKY (AP)

Suspects Charged in Deadly Marijuana Deal Gone Bad

Three suspects were charged Tuesday with murder in the case of a teenager shot in the head during what authorities described as a drug deal that turned into a robbery.

Bijan Nassirdaftari, 17, was gunned down Sunday night.

Authorities believe Nassirdaftari and some friends were trying to buy marijuana from one of the suspects — who then allegedly conspired with the other two suspects to instead rob Nassirdaftari.

Nader Ally Pondering '06 Bid for Open Senate Seat

Kevin Zeese, a Montgomery County activist who served as chief spokesman for Ralph Nader during his 2004 bid for president, said Tuesday he has launched an exploratory committee for a possible run for U.S. Senate in 2006.

Zeese, an independent, says his exploratory committee includes Democrats, Republicans and third parties.

Three Democrats — former congressman Kweisi Mfume, U.S. Rep. Benjamin Cardin and activist A. Robert Kaufman — are running for the seat of the retiring U.S. Sen. Paul Sarbanes.

Lt. Gov. Michael Steele, a Republican, may also run. (AP)

Police Link Kid's Death To Family

WASHINGTON | Police had hoped to make an arrest by day's end Tuesday in the case of a 6-year-old boy found dead — tied up at his hands and feet — in the bathtub of a Southeast Washington apartment, but there were still no charges late in the day.

Don Miguel Wilson was discovered Monday by his grandmother when she arrived to pick him up from the apartment where he lived with his mother and an 11-month-old brother.

"We have identified all of the family members. We believe it's got to be dealing with that family," said Capt. C.V. Morris, commander of the Metropolitan Police Department's Violent Crimes Branch. He added that all family members have been cooperative with investigators.

Metro: SmarTrip Deters Car Thefts

WASHINGTON | The desire to pinch pennies may be stopping some would-be thieves from pinching cars at Metro parking lots.

The transit agency reports a 40 percent drop in auto thefts from its subway station lots, so far this year. And officials believe requiring SmarTrip cards to get out of the lots has helped.

"They're reluctant to break a gate and car thieves are reluctant to take money out of their own pockets to get out of the lot," Acting Deputy Metro Transit Police Chief David Webb said Tuesday, of the electronic debit cards required to pay for parking at commuter lots. (AP)

Landlords Told to Beef Up Security

'Hardening' of offices needed to stem N. Va. loss of Defense workers

ARLINGTON, VA. | Faced with the prospect of seeing thousands of Defense Department jobs move away, two Northern Virginia congressmen are urging building owners to start meeting the Pentagon's antiterrorism standards — or suffer the consequences.

Moran

But it's not so easy. Among the issues complicating any modifications to existing buildings, and construction of new ones, is a lack of standardization on security requirements.

"There's a substantial discrepancy to GSA's approach to hardening buildings and the Department of Defense," said Rep. Jim Moran, D-Va. Moran joined Rep. Tom Davis, R-Va., for a briefing Tuesday on security standards mandated by the DOD, the General Services Administration and other federal agencies.

"These requirements apply to nine to 10 million square feet right in Northern Virginia, and we're not sure building operators are going to be able to adequately retrofit these buildings," Moran said — warning that as many as 50,000 defense jobs could be lost in Northern Virginia by the end of the decade.

Davis has called a hearing to examine those security standards next week. DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

Hewlett-Packard Plans To Slash 14,500 Jobs

Company aims to save $1.9B a year after cuts, retirement changes

SAN JOSE, CALIF. | Computer and printer maker Hewlett-Packard Co. said Tuesday it will cut 14,500 jobs and overhaul its retirement program in a restructuring plan designed to save $1.9 billion annually and bring costs closer to those of competitors.

The cuts — about 10 percent of its global work force of 150,000 — will occur over the next 18 months. Most will affect support jobs such as information technology, human resources and finance. HP now has about 58,000 workers in the U.S., including 9,000 in the San Francisco Bay area.

As part of the retirement overhaul, HP said that beginning in January, it will freeze the pension and retiree medical-program benefits of current employees who do not meet defined criteria based on age and years of company service. Instead, HP plans to boost its matching contribution to most employees' 401(k) plans to 6 percent from 4 percent.

Cars

DOOR CRAZY: Porsche AG may be considering a four-door model, Bloomberg columnist Doron Levin reported Monday. Three years ago, the sports-car maker expanded into SUVs with the Cayenne.

Jag Jumps on the Wagon

What's sporty and a wagon? That's right, it's a Sportswagon!

ROAD TEST | Agnosia is a rare mental disability whose sufferers cannot distinguish objects — hens from hammers, dollars from doughnuts, that sort of thing. The car market suffers a wicked case.

Under the category of “sport wagons,” you will find vehicles such as the Toyota RAV4, Lexus RX 330, Buick Rendezvous, Ford Escape and Hyundai Santa Fe; all lack both sport and wagon-ness. If these are sport wagons, what do you call the BMW 325xi wagon, the Audi A4 and A6 Avant or the coming-soon Saab 9-3 SportCombi?

The Jaguar X-Type Sportwagon adds a touch of pathos to any desolate landscape.

A proper sport wagon starts life as a sport sedan and then grows a cargo hold. Consider the Jaguar X-Type Sportwagon, a variant of the X-Type sedan. It has a compact, European feel, a clutch-purse elegance. To shore up its Coventry cat credentials, it retains the full complement of Jaguar cues, including lots of brightwork around the windows, grille and bumpers, as well as the fluted hood, quad headlamps and a big leaper hood ornament. The car is virtually identical to the sedan from the nose to the rear doors. The rising shoulder line, blacked out roof pillars and bowed roof line all help visually lower the car's rear quarter for a rakish effect.

Powered by a 3.0-liter, 227-horsepower V6, a five-speed automatic and full-time all-wheel drive, the Sportwagon is agreeably competent when driven hard, but it feels its weight. The interior twitters a bit when the car encounters rough pavement but not so much as to be distracting. The source of these signals in our test car seemed to be the

Try as I might, I can't help liking this car. Buying one is another matter. A fully equipped X-Type Sportwagon with navigation and xenon headlamps will cost more than $40,000.

Car Care

Automotive expert PAT GOSS owns Pat Goss Car World, Inc., a local car repair company. He chats monthly on washingtonpost.com/cars.

Is it OK to slightly over-inflate tires since they'll gradually lose pressure anyway?

Depends. Do you value your safety? If you do, don't do it. If you don't care about safety, have at it.

I've been out of the country for two years. I would like to know what I should do for my 1994 Volvo and 1989 Chevy Silverado, which have been used sparingly for the past couple of years. Besides changing the oil, are there any other maintenance tasks I should perform?

All the fluids should be changed, fuel will probably be nasty and both vehicles should have a thorough safety inspection.

I have a 1999 Honda CRV with about 30,000 miles. Recently a friend said I should have the timing belt changed because it's reaching the end of its five- to six-year life span. Given the low mileage on the vehicle (well below the 60,000 Honda says the belt will last), should I go ahead and change the belt or wait until it's nearer the recommended mileage?

Change the belt! You're courting disaster. Timing belts are based on time or mileage, whichever comes first. Hondas have interference engines, so if your tired old belt breaks or slips, it will cost hundreds to thousands to correct the damage.

Recently, when I turn on my air conditioning and then step on the gas pedal, my car will make a squealing noise.

Check the belt tension and belt condition. If your car uses an automatic belt tensioner to maintain proper belt tension, check the tensioner.

On a recent trip to the dealer, I was told that I should get fuel induction service on my car, as they'd noticed it sometimes hesitates when accelerating. I have a Volkswagen with about 55,000 miles on it. Is it normal to need this service?

Most cars require some form of induction service every 30,000 to 50,000 miles, with or without symptoms.

Armstrong keeps lead in last Tour de France high mountain stage

CYCLING | Lance Armstrong protected his comfortable lead on the Tour de France's last day in the high mountains Tuesday, finishing in a pack with his main rivals 3:24 behind stage winner Oscar Pereiro.

Now, the only things standing between Armstrong and a seventh consecutive Tour title are a time trial, two medium mountain stages and two mostly flat stages, including the last ride into Paris on Sunday.

Pereiro beat a fellow Spaniard, Xabier Zandio, and two other riders in a finishing sprint to win the stage. Armstrong kept his overall Armstrong's main rivals, sensing that their chances of catching the American are slipping away, tried testing him again on two main climbs in stage 16 from Mourenx to Pau, the last of three days in the Pyrenees.

But Armstrong comfortably matched their uphill accelerations — and cruised to the finish looking relaxed.

Armstrong called it a "no chain" day — meaning he felt so strong it seemed as if his bike had no chain.

"I felt amazing on the bike," Armstrong said. "It's always nice to get through the mountains, especially the second set of mountains. ... The big difficulties are done."

Pistons, Hall of Fame coach reach deal on contract buyout

BASKETBALL | Larry Brown is out as coach of the Detroit Pistons.

Brown and the Pistons reached a settlement on the final three years of his contract, Pistons spokesman Matt Dobek said Tuesday.

The team didn't want the Hall of Fame coach back and had offered a payoff, Brown's agent, Joe Glass, said Tuesday.

Brown is now free to coach another team next season, Dobek said.

Brown coached Detroit to an NBA championship and fell one victory short of another title in his two seasons with the team. Detroit had signed Brown to a five-year contract worth about $25 million, plus incentive bonuses.

Brown has been resting, on doctor's orders, at his home in New York since he checked out of a hospital nearly three weeks ago.

The 64-year-old Brown was hospitalized for complications from hip surgery in November and a second procedure in March. He checked into the Mayo Clinic the morning after last month's NBA draft, less than a week after Detroit lost Game 7 of the finals to the San Antonio Spurs.

Brown had said, if doctors deemed him healthy enough, he wanted to return next season to coach the Pistons.

"His medical condition isn't 100 percent," Glass said. LARRY LAGE (AP)

NCAA Planning Anti-Gambling Effort

COLLEGIATE | The NCAA plans to begin closely monitoring betting lines on games and to start background checks on baseball and hockey officials as part of its anti-gambling efforts, it said Tuesday.

The moves follow an NCAA study last year that found that 35 percent of male athletes and 10 percent of female athletes had gambled on college sports in the previous year.

"We want to know more about what is going on in Las Vegas," NCAA gambling activities director Rachel Newman-Baker said.

U.S. Relay Could Lose Gold Medals

TRACK | A sports arbitration court will rule Thursday on whether the U.S. men's 1,600-meter relay team should lose their 2000 Olympic gold medals because of an earlier doping infraction by Jerome Young.

Young, who has already lost his medal, ran in the opening and semi-final rounds but not in the final. He tested positive in 1999 for steroids, but was cleared for the Olympics by a U.S. appeals panel. (AP)

HBO: Tower of Cable

When in Rome, be violent, sexy and water-cooler cool

DEBUT | Get ready for Full Frontal Empire.

That's the sort of description critics are kicking around for HBO's big-money, 12-hour series "Rome," launching its weekly episodes Aug. 28. Yes, this lavish location production vividly illustrates the rise of Julius Caesar, and yes, it charts the class warfare behind the decline of democracy and rise of empire, and yes, it's historically authentic, blah blah blah.

It's also in-your-face with full-frontal nudity, battle brutality, whippings, crucifixions and blood-drenched pagan rituals. In other words: enough debauchery to make Cecil B. DeMille's old-Hollywood Sodom wallows seem positively preschool.

"Rome" is a linchpin in HBO's bid to reclaim water-cooler cool, at a time when the channel hears industry whispers that it's slipping in quality and zeitgeist status.

Critics' reaction to early episodes of "Rome" previewed here was lukewarm, most critics finding it an expectedly extravagant costume epic boasting artsy British accents and historical context but not much dramatic momentum.

THE RISE AND FALL OF PREMIUM CABLE: As "Rome" shows, lounging provocatively was a major aspect of Roman life.

HBO's other big push was for the comedy series "Extras," premiering Sept. 25. The BBC co-production won fans for its depiction of the desperation behind low-paid movie extra work, but the favorable feelings sometimes seemed generated by good will for star-creator Ricky Gervais, widely beloved for his BBC satire "The Office."

Hollywood is even in the title of HBO's Aug. 13 documentary "A Father, a Son ... Once Upon a Time in Hollywood." But subjects Kirk and Michael Douglas won over critics with their openness and obvious love, conveyed in director Lee Grant's conversational portrait and in their press tour Q&A session.

And, shock of shocks, "The Sopranos" came up. HBO's flagship drama will debut its sixth season in March. Albrecht told critics nothing is signed beyond that, but he said he believes creator David Chase "feels like there's more to tell than what he's got planned for this season." DIANE WERTS (NEWSDAY)

Radio's Hard Act to Follow

A Howard Stern show prank may herald the jock's replacements

RADIO | Howard Stern, who is counting the days before he leaves terrestrial radio for satellite, pumped up the volume on replacement rumors by saying on the air Monday that comedian Adam Corolla and ex-rocker David Lee Roth would be taking over his popular morning time slot, at least in the Los Angeles and New York markets.

If true, the personnel moves by Infinity Broadcasting — whose contract with Stern expires at the end of the year — suggest that multiple radio personalities in regional markets will be used to fill in for the shock jock and "King of All Media."

Since rumors about Roth began swirling earlier this month, the Viacom-owned company has maintained that no announcement regarding Stern is imminent.

Radio analysts — and Stern himself — have speculated that Infinity may dump the New York-based personality as early as September, reasoning that advertisers would be reluctant to buy ads knowing that Stern will soon be off the air.

Roth, best remembered as a rock singer, has been experimenting with his "Diamond Dave" morning show at a classic-rock station in Boston.

Corolla is co-host, along with Dr. Drew Pinsky, of the nationally syndicated radio program "Loveline." The comic, who has been a frequent guest on Stern's radio show, was also co-host of Comedy Central's "The Man Show."

Stern made his announcement following an elaborate hourlong ruse in which it appeared Roth already had taken over the show and the longtime shock jock had been summarily bounced out of his job. In fact, Stern used comic Bill Mira, who has been doing a credible Roth voice imitation for months for the show, to be "Diamond Dave."

The Spirit Moves Them

Gospel's sister act Mary Mary returns with a strong purpose

RECORDING | After taking three years off to start families, Grammy Award-winning sister act Erica and Tina Campbell, better known as Mary Mary, have resumed their gospel recording career with renewed spirit.

"We missed the recording process," Erica said, but also noted that the experience of recording the pair's third album in the studio differed markedly from before.

"We had a chance to learn the difference between us getting in the way and God having his way, and I know that God definitely had his way. If we weren't feeling it in the studio, if things weren't coming together, then we'd just go home."

The duo, which takes its name from two Marys in the Bible — Jesus' mother and Mary Magdalene — quickly rose to prominence in the gospel field.

Tina said that it's hard not to feel the pressure to match past successes, but she and her sister just try to focus on their original purpose.

"We realized that God has given us a gift and we don't have to try to be inspired, all we have to do is sit back and chill and let God inspire us just like he did before we knew all the politics and the business and the pressures," she said. "[We asked God,] 'Just give us passion, give us clear minds so we can just do what you allow us to do,' and I think that's what happened."

The album's lead single, "Heaven," has spent seven weeks at No. 1 on the Billboard Hot Gospel Songs chart, and even made a crack into the Hot 100 of the Hot R&B/Hip-Hop Songs chart.

Between records, the sisters have not been idle. They appeared in the movie "The Fighting Temptations," performed in Africa and each gave birth to a baby girl.

"It gives you more passion," Tina said of motherhood. "Erica has said that she loves deeper, and now that I've had my baby, I know that to be true. It gives you an appreciation for things that you might not have noticed before."

PAULA'S MAD SKILLZ: Paula Abdul will join Fox's "So You Think You Can Dance" in a series of video vignettes. The noted former Laker Girls choreographer will fly all over the country, ambushing real people and teaching them to shake their booties.

No Place for Talent

What are gifted icons like Venus and Serena doing on reality TV?

DEBUT | If reality TV's current goal seems to be providing a showcase of willing amateurs or a second chance for the Pauly Shores of the world, then what are two truly great athletes doing on "Venus & Serena: For Real" (10 p.m., Family)?

The good news is neither Venus nor Serena embarrasses herself on this reality show. The bad news is they are on a reality show. "For Real" has a rushed, lets-get-thisover-with quality to it. Venus and Serena are seen talking, or rather screaming, over the din of a crowded restaurant because that seems to be the only place the crew could catch them before they went off to practice, or hold a press conference, or any of the other 9 million things they do — off-camera.

This being the ABC Family channel, "For Real" also has a patented Disney feel to it. The sisters are seen driving wacky in a golf cart, because that's what all Disneyish starlets have to do.

The Williams sisters will have decades of post-tennis life to succeed or fail on television. Just ask John McEnroe. But for the present, we'd rather see them perform on the court. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

ON TV TONIGHT

SO YOU THINK YOU CAN WATCH? The two-hour premiere of SO YOU THINK YOU CAN DANCE? (8 p.m., Fox) showcases 50 amateur dancers.

THE BUTTON-DOWN MASTER AMERICAN MASTERS (8 p.m., PBS) profiles Bob Newhart.

WAKING NIGHTMARE CSI: NY (10 p.m., CBS) A sleepwalker stumbles into trouble.

MICHAEL RENNIE REALLY WAS ILL DANGEROUS CROSSING (8 p.m., Fox Movie Channel) A groom disappears on a honeymoon cruise in this 1953 mystery starring Jeanne Crain, Michael Rennie and Carl Betz.

self and then sends a perfect stranger floating into the air. In the second installment, he turns himself into a human candle. Slow and repetitive, "Mindfreak" turns these seemingly miraculous stunts into tedium. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

DISCOVER SENEGAL LA TERANGA

His Excellency, Ousmane Masseeck NDIAYE, Minister of Tourism and Air Transportation of Senegal, took the opportunity of his last visit in Washington, DC to present the rich tourism marvels of the unique country of Senegal. The former French colony of Senegal is located on the westernmost edge of Africa's Atlantic coast, only a seven-hour direct flight from New York. Senegal's location makes it a point of convergence for leisure travel with its legendary hospitality captured by its "Teranga" philosophy, "Welcome to guests of all walks of life."

Senegal offers a wide range of experiences mixing the African culture with a bit of Gaelic flavor. Dakar, the capital of Senegal, is known for its jazz festival, M'Bour, on the "petite cote" with its beautiful natural beaches. The Casomance region in the south is known for its amazing flora and fauna in a beautiful rain forest. Tambacounda, the Eastern region of Senegal, has wild animals and a myriad of birds while offering first class resorts and hotels where all kind of activities such as surfing, fishing, kayaking, golf and casinos can be enjoyed. On Goree Island, off the coast of Dakar, there are historic landmarks and colonial architecture including the House of Slaves and the "Door of No Return" to highlight any visit. Saly Portugal on the "petite Cote" of Goree Island features the Pink Lake, one of the seven wonders of the world; recreational fishing; and the natural reserve of Niokolo-Koba where all kinds of animals coexist. Cap Skirring Tours arrange tours to villages for a glance of Senegal multiethnic culture and languages. The Senegal tourism sector is the most vital and developed in West Africa. Senegal possesses modern infrastructure, first class hotels and resorts. Europeans who enjoy the beautiful environment crowd Senegal's great tourist centers. Come discover the beauty of Senegal.

Best Wishes,
Mohamadou Thiam

Dorks, once scorned, come into their own as the new 'cool'

Maybe it's because young computer gurus are now enjoying the millionaire life. Perhaps it has something to do with the unexpected popularity last year of the movie "Napoleon Dynamite," about a quirky, dancing teen and his sleepy Idaho town.

Whatever the reason, being a nerd, a geek, a dork — whatever you want to call the tragically unhip — is becoming a source of pride.

Case in point: Steffi Weiss, a 15-year-old in the Chicago suburb of Lake Zurich, who plays violin in the school's orchestra.

This spring, she and a friend bought black mesh sports jerseys — something like the football team's — and added "ORCH DORKS" in white letters on the front, their last names on the back and their instrument on the sleeves (VLN I, for first violin, in Weiss' case).

"We used to not be able to stand the fact that we were in orchestra," said Weiss, who's been playing the violin since fourth grade and proudly wore the shirt to her high school this year. "Finally, we realized that's where all our friends are and that's where we have the most fun."

"So why not just say we're dorks?"

There was a time when teens who tried something like that would have been asking for some serious goofing. But today being smart and sensitive, even a little socially awkward, is often considered cool — and the signs are everywhere.

"The O.C.," a TV show popular with teens, has Seth, a comic-book loving nerd played by actor Adam Brody. Bands such as Weezer also feed off the dork image, complete with horn-rimmed glasses and a song about being OK with not fitting the Beverly Hills mold. "Napoleon Dynamite" has a fan club; its Web site claims 150,000 members.

And, increasingly, people are parading around in shirts that say "Dork Pride!" among other things. Such items have gotten so popular that CafePress.com, an online merchandiser, has created a special category for shirts and other items celebrating geeks, dorks and nerds.

Philip Kaplan, the 29-year-old founder of the startup online ad company AdBrite finds the whole phenomenon amusing.

"In high school, I didn't go to parties. I didn't have a lot of friends," said Kaplan, who lives in San Francisco and also created a tongue-in-cheek Web site that chronicled the dot-com bust.

"Now all the people from high school are asking me if I have a job for them. So I guess it wasn't so bad to be a dork," he said.

People who track youth trends have noticed the shift in attitude, too.

"It feels like, for a while there, we were hearing so much about bullying in schools — and this is almost a time for the geeks to stand up for themselves," said Schuyler Brown, a trendspotter for advertising and marketing firm Euro RSCG.

Taking Drugs With the Stars

Celebrities

Hollywood teams up with pharmaceutical makers to hawk meds

Like millions of women going through menopause, actress Cheryl Ladd quit taking hormone pills after research showed risks of breast cancer, stroke and heart attack.

But after months of horrible hot flashes and disrupted sleep, the star of the 1970s TV series "Charlie's Angels" says she was so miserable, she resumed taking a hormone drug after consulting her doctor. Now she's doing ads urging women to talk to their doctors or visit a Web site.

The site is sponsored by Wyeth, maker of leading hormone replacement pills Prempro and Premarin, and Wyeth's logo appears in the TV ad. Ladd's subtle promotion is the latest twist in the 7-year-old practice of celebrities promoting drugs, whether they use them or not: Rather than pitch a specific medicine, the celebrities make you "aware" of suffering you might have overlooked and usually point you to a Web site sponsored by a company selling a treatment for that condition.

Such ads don't have to mention any drug risks.

From sports figures like Jack Nicklaus to movie stars like Sylvester Stallone, dozens of famous people have been on TV in recent years urging consumers to ask their doctors for specific prescription drugs.

Now, more of those celebrities want to make you "aware" of problems you might not know about or even have. Experts say the shift is because of concerns over medication safety and criticism from medical and consumer groups that ads minimize drug risks. They also point to talk in Congress about new regulations, possibly banning consumer ads until a drug has been on sale for a year, allowing time for rare side effects to emerge.

GOOD WORK, ANGEL: Subtle spiels, such as Cheryl Ladd's for Wyeth, are now in.

"Definitely there has been an increase in spending" on disease awareness ads this year, said Stu Klein, president of Quantum, a health care advertising company in Parsippany, N.J. "What 2005 will probably show is that percentage going up."

Adspending monitor TNS Media notes consumer drug ad spending, which totaled $4.4 billion in 2004, actually dipped 1.5 percent in the first five months of this year, compared to that period last year — the first time it hasn't gone up. But the percentage of disease awareness ads that don't mention a specific product doubled to 4.6 percent of all network TV drug ads from January through April, said TNS research director Jon Swallen.

Ladd, 53, said she is proud to be part of the campaign. Two ads she filmed that point viewers to Wyeth's www.TalkToYourDoctor.com will run on news and other programs favored by older women.

SCARY IN PINK
So cute it's frightening, this dress combines fearsome and feminine with two layers of pretty pink ruffles and a skull not afraid to show her girly side. (LUCKYLILDEVIL.COM, $24)

SMART BLONDE

Raffi is for losers. Your baby will find rapture with Debbie Harry in this Blondie onesie from MYPUNKBABY.COM ($24). Top it off with a "Hittin' the Bottle" cap for $12 and a devil-head pacifier ($12, not pictured).

IMMACULATE RECEPTION

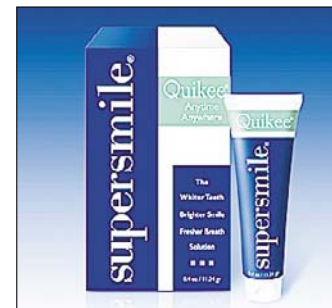

Just because you got pregnant doesn't mean you lost your sense of humor. Embrace irony in TOYBITCH's "Virgin" maternity shirt. (toybitch.com, $48)

MMMM, BABY

Your baby is so cute, wild dogs could just eat him up. ("Dingo Snack" tee, glarkware.com; $18)

Teeth

'Excuse Me While I Tongue My Teeth'

At first, the SUPERSMILE QUIKEE PORTABLE TOOTH POLISH ($16, sephora.com) just seems like eating toothpaste (you're supposed to spread it all over your teeth with your tongue). Then you actually eat toothpaste and end up drooling foam all over your shirt. Part of the vast Supersmile family of tooth-whitening products, Quikee has none of the aftertaste of breathmints, nor is it nuclear in its freshness like some breath strips. The tongue-over-teeth action will get you some odd looks if you do it at your desk, but it does seem to convince your teeth that they're a bit cleaner than before. K.P.K.

Hair

Goopy and Smelly Not Positive Virtues

HAMADI SHEA HAIR CREAM (4oz. for $23, drugstore.com) purports to be perfect for thick, wavy or curly hair, eliminating frizz and keeping curls in line. For those tired of struggling with hairdryers and round brushes, it sounds like a dream: Just apply to wet hair, twist and let dry naturally. Unfortunately, it's just not that easy. The paste is thick and smells like furniture polish; it also weighed hair down, robbing curls of bounce. As a straightening agent, things weren't much better—it was still too heavy. Perhaps in winter, when heavier anti-frizz artillery is needed, Hamadi will be called into battle, but until then, it's just too goopy for the money. K.P.K.

Headbanger Baby

MOMMY, I'M SCARED

What's even scarier than clowns? Possibly these skull and tattoo-pattern crib sets. (COOL BABYSHEETS.COM, $105 includes a fitted sheet and a blanket)

It must be tough being a baby. Granted, you get to take naps pretty much whenever you want, but you're severely lacking in things like free will. You had no say in the Pooh Bear infestation that broke out in your room, right? You didn't ask to have a nickname like "Doodlebug." And every day you're crammed into something that either has a teddy bear, a train or a teddy bear riding a train. Parents, your baby is sick of wearing lollipops and kittens. Your baby wants cool stuff. Your baby wants edge. Your baby wants to wear black. KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY (EXPRESS)

BEWARE OF BABY

You're both feeling it—why not warn those you encounter? Mom's shirt says "Cranky;" baby's says "Stinky." (BABYWIT.COM, $42 FOR BOTH)

ANDREA BONIOR, PH.D.

Nocturnal Oppressions

I HAVE A VERY DEMANDING school and work schedule, but I generally manage to complete projects satisfactorily. Unfortunately, when I face a big deadline, unconscious anxiety ruins my sleep. I wake up in the middle of the night and can't go back to sleep for hours. Once this starts, my sleep pattern gets confused, and I can go for a week or more with only a few hours of sleep each night. Often my body gets worn down and I get sick. I know I shouldn't worry about these upcoming projects, as I always do fine. How can I conquer my unconscious anxieties so that I can sleep? — SLEEPLESS IN WASHINGTON

This is a classic example of how psychology can affect physiology. You've developed a pattern in which your cognitions create anxiety, which leads to arousal — increased heart rate, faster, shallower breathing, and muscle tension. Those attributes were great for cavemen fighting mastadons, but not so great when you need a full night's rest for a presentation on poll numbers. If the cheesy title won't keep you up at night, "Say Good Night to Insomnia" by Gregg Jacobs, Ph.D., contains a do-it-yourself program to take a bite out of this pattern. For more direct support and guidance, working with a cognitive-behavioral therapist would be a big help.

My boyfriend and I broke up after four years together because he just didn't want to do anything fun, he complained about my friends, and we had sex, like, once every two months. But despite all that, he's a good person. I finally had enough and moved out. For the two years we were apart we remained friends. Then stupid me decided to give him another chance because he said he changed. I moved back with him five months ago. As the saying goes, you can't teach an old dog new tricks. Should I give it more time or run far away? — RUNNING OUT OF PATIENCE, MD.

In this case, running out of patience is a good thing. Whether it's you, him, your friends or his libido, this is a relationship that works about as well as a mesh bedpan. Granted, your attraction and attachment to him must be significant — you keep going back for more. But that's simply not enough to sustain long-term compatibility, as your totally at-odds lifestyles keep proving to you. Take what you've learned and call it quits: You and this guy seem to do much better as friends than as lovers.

Send your mental health and emotional wellness questions to Andrea Bonior, Ph.D. at baggage@readexpress.com. This column is not a substitute for one-on-one care.

Letters

Those Who Cry 'Race Card'

THE WRITER OF THE LETTER "Don't Deal the Race Card" (July 18) fails to realize that the race card has already been dealt, and not by those who "complain" but by those whom he seems to think it's being dealt against. They deal the race card when deciding which news gets covered and how much coverage it will receive. Sure, the first woman buried in the London bombings was Bangladeshi. That still does not deny the fact that most of the victims were white. If most of the victims had been Bangladeshi, no one would have cared.

The London bombings made front pages. But the last Iraqi bombings where numerous children were killed got a page corner. So who's really dealing the race card here?

Horoscope

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll be in a romantic mood throughout the day, and you can enjoy a pleasing personal development during the evening as a result of your own daring.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) What appears simply matter-of-fact may actually be more mysterious and elusive. Further understanding depends on closer study.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You can find joy in helping someone in need. Sharing the wealth of your knowledge and experience can only make you more wealthy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You'll encounter difficulty when faced with someone who is unwilling to change his or her attitude. Your own stubbornness may be the problem.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) The slow way is the best way. You've been overly concerned with making up for lost time recently, and it's time you took your time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You may find it difficult if not impossible to erase from your memory an unfortunate misunderstanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Let your own instincts tell you where to go and what to do. You needn't follow anyone else's rules when it comes to winging it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) This is a good day for socializing at work and at home. Don't make the mistake, however, of forcing your opinions on others too soon.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Now is no time to rush yourself in any way. You will want to take it slow, consider all options, weigh pros and cons, and avoid unnecessary risk.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The more you risk, the more your potential rewards, but it is absolutely essential that your preparations are thorough and complete.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your own ideals and expectations may be frowned upon by others for a time, until they know what you are up to in more detail.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your emotional stability is not to be doubted, but there is no real reason why you should become stubborn and unyielding.

Lil' Kim Turns on Fellow Member of Lil' Population

LIL' KIM has filed a $6 million lawsuit against one of the two men who gave wounding testimony at her recent trial on perjury and conspiracy charges. In a lawsuit filed Monday in U.S. District Court, she accuses James "Lil' Cease" Lloyd of preparing to release an unauthorized DVD, "The Chronicles of Junior M.A.F.I.A. Part II: Reloaded." Lil' Kim says she left Junior M.A.F.I.A. in 2001. She says the DVD, like a predecessor, was unauthorized and improperly uses her name, image and likeness, amounting to false advertising and false endorsement. (AP)

The Weinstein Brothers Totally Have the Same Goal

JET LI says the high number of suicides in China prompted him to make his new movie about kung-fu master Huo Yuanjia, saying he wants to inspire youngsters to live life to the fullest. "I decided to make this movie in 2003 because I was influenced by the news that 280,000 people commit suicide in China every year," Li told the Apple Daily newspaper. "I don't understand why young people can give up their lives so easily ... I hope everyone can learn from Huo Yuanjia and stick with their beliefs." (AP)

COLIN FARRELL is suing Nicole Narain for allegedly trying to distribute and profit from a sex tape the two recorded. The lawsuit, filed Monday in Los Angeles Superior Court, seeks general and compensatory damages as well as a temporary restraining order and injunction prohibiting the sale and exploitation of the tape. Farrell and Narain had agreed the 15-minute tape would remain private, according to the suit, which also accuses Narain of working with the owner of an Internet pornography business and contacting the news media about the tape. EVIDENCE

You See, the Dot on This 'i' Simply Isn't Famous Enough

Two forensic experts have testified that a signature on a model release form involving topless photos of

CAMERON DIAZ appeared to be forged, using an autographed publicity photo of the actress. Photographer

John Rutter is accused of trying to blackmail Diaz over the pictures he took in 1992, before she was famous, and attempted to sell back to her in 2003 for $3.5 million. Forensic document examiner Bruce Greenwood, who analyzed copies of Diaz's writings, testified Monday that the signature on the release form looked forged. He also testified that the signature on the publicity photo of Diaz and "Feeling Minnesota" co-star Keanu Reeves was a fake. (AP)

LITIGATION

Say 'Thanks' or I'll Sue

ASHANTI was accused in a civil court case of abandoning her first music producer, Genard Parker, when he asked for money after she became successful, an allegation she denied on the witness stand. "She has never paid him and, just as importantly, she has never thanked him," said Parker's lawyer in opening statements Monday in U.S. District Court in Manhattan. (AP)

PERSONALITIES

Madonna Rejects The 'Cone-Bra' Identity

MADONNA says she's different now from the sexed-up star of 1991's "Truth or Dare." In some ways, that film is hard for her to watch, she tells Vogue in an interview published in the August issue. "I was a very selfish person. You go through periods of your life where the world does revolve around you, but you can't live your whole life that way," she says. "On the other hand, I kind of admire my spunk and directness!" (AP)

Sometimes, at night, she puts on the cone-bra and dances across the moor.
